3. In your book on pages 301-302 are a list of font and text properties. Pick a property off this list that we did not use in either the lecture or lab. Explain how you could see this property being applied to something on either the bio, skills or contact pages to make the design better.
I would use the text-decoration property since it is able to underline text. I love underlining important points, and I believe underlining the list of skills in my bio page can draw attention to future employers or viewers to show them my capabilities. I'd also like to underline the countries I traveled to as a display of the global perspective I gained traveling the world.
 - a. Who's copy document did you review?
Alison Kunzwiller
 - b. What typos are in your partner's copy document?
The names of the museums should be upper case (Tate Modern). The bullets on the last page are a bit inconsistent, with some sentences coming after the dash versus lowercase spelling in others. On page three I think the food stall names should be capitalized as well. There is also a typo on the text of the home page where "business" should be "busyness" since it describes the bustle of the tube station.
 - c. What didn't they communicate clearly? Give me details here?
For the museum she may want to give more detail on the Tate Modern especially since the exhibits always change and she is a little vague on the "features many exhibits." Other than that, I loved this website idea especially since I studied abroad in London and was able to mentally verify her recommendations.

- d. Did the copy seem like it was too much/not enough? Explain.

I thought there was enough material to work with, especially knowing that she would add pictures. She was very specific in her recommendations and explains each location in short descriptions. She may want to expand descriptions of the museums.

- e. Where could your partner use headings, bullet points, etc. to make the copy stand out more to users?

She could use headings mostly on page 2 and 3 when she describes the places to visit and eat. This can be to separate the different categories of tourist attraction and dining. For bullet points she can use them on page 3 where she describes the best foods at Camden Market.

- f. Any other comments?

I loved reading this copy and it provided a great guide for first timers in London!
